FILM SERVICING IN AFRICA

WHO WE BE

We're a hardy, compact, ambition-driven team with years of experience in pioneering the local industry. Why should this matter? We translate this – alongside our low overheads – into customer savings. High-quality, cost-effective productions are our forte, and above that, we offer a truly personal approach: the never-absent partner away from home, helping you attain the epitome of quality commercials, whilst making it an enjoyable ride for both you and your clients.

We use the same Line-Producers, Equipment, and Crews as the big guys, so there really is no difference between us and them, except we don't have a leather sofa in the foyer. We have a permanent Company Director and Executive Producer in the USA who is available to attend production house, agency, as well as client meetings and briefings. We have the exact same set up across Europe and the British Isles. Our skillsets and extensive networks have seen to the successful completion of over 300 productions throughout Africa. And we're dead-set on making sure you get to experience the same successful execution.

Mark Lawrie

UK Executive Producer

Mark Lawrie was born in Johannesburg and moved to Barcelona when he was twelve. Interested in theatre and photography from an early age, he first ventured into film as a student, filming local 8mm cult classics in Berlin and Barcelona. He entered the industry as a music promo director in the late 80's. A highlight of this period for him was directing the "Rainbow Nation Concert" live in Johannesburg in 1991, with historic appearances by Nelson Mandela and Bishop Tutu. He also directed theatre productions and minor cabaret! In the 90's, his ground-breaking and sometimes subversive music promo's helped launch the careers of many well-known South African musicians and earned him many awards along the way, winning the OKTV/Octave award thrice in a row*. Mark began directing commercials for television and cinema in 1994 with The Gatehouse. He then joined Velocity Films for over a decade. In 2010 he moved to the UK and is established as a freelance director working worldwide. He is represented internationally and has worked with agencies and clients around the globe.
